Concept

+ Salem is a television show about a well, Salem. During the Salem witch trials. Most of the show is wrapped around deceit. Witches are real. They are fighting to stay in the shadows. Many things make this complicated, they try and keep everything behind closed doors. Converting other woman over to the witch side. Abigail is the first person to be approached by a witch and now she acts out around town. She convinces people that others are witches, even though she is lying. The real witches eventually recruit her, however this was a horrible idea. Due to the fact that Abigail is a danger to herself and others. There are peaceful witches who wish no harm, a lot of humans are pushing their buttons by going hunting for them. The head witch Mary is in love with John who was sentenced away and basically gave her child to Satan. She thought the child was just dead, however she was wrong. Her child is incredibly powerful and dangerous. The story is beautiful and chaotic. It's not always filled with evil and gore.

+ I want to create a nice composition mixing frame by frame. 2D, and my worst enemy puppet tool. My color scheme will stay around black, white, and red

+ I want to have characters involved and also a background(trying something new)
